WILSON SHOPS AS SUDDEN WEDDING PLAN IS TALKED

Purchase of Travelling Case Given as Sign-Some Stick for December Marriage.

" DETAILS KEPT SECRET

President and Bride-to-Be Urged to Spend Their Honeymoon in the South.

WASHINGTON, OH, H .- AM President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Gall pushing to surprise the Nation with a sudden weating? Here are some facts that seem to point that

The President supped away from the White House to-day and bright a traveling case and some other articles.

Secretary of the Treasury McAuor and Mrs. McAdoo: daughter of the President, who were to have left for the West last Priday, haven't some yet. Secretary and Mrs. Garrison are. returning from Hot Springs, Va., this week, instead of pest week, as planned.

Mrs. Daniels, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, who has been visiting in the South, will come back immediately to Washington.

Miss Margaret Wilson, who was not expected to return to the White House until next Friday, will come home at

Only one thing has been learned acfinitely about the wedding trip, and that is it will not be to San Diego. The President to day sent a latter to the San Diego school superinendent the San Diego school superinensent saying it seemed impossible for him to accept an invitation of the school children there. The petition bere thousands of children's signatures and when tightly rolled made a paper cylinder nearly a foot in diameter.

The President and Mrs. Galt are being urged to go to Pass Christian.

The Modern Girl, who has been denounced by scores of fivening W orld readers as a far less admirable creature than the Old-Factioned Girl,

The Business Girl Makes a Good Wife and Mother Because She Is a Business Girl and Knows More of the Problems of Life Than the Stay-at-Home Old-Fashioned Girl.

By Marquerite Mooers Marshall.

To-day the business girl speaks in her own defense. The criticisms of her have been lavish and emphatic. She has been called "an awful up-todater." "a dressed-up clown," "a domestic ignoramus" and "a failure as a sweetheart." It is time to give her a chance to answer some of these strictures, and I am glad that I have received letters from her which present her own side of the case with fluency and fervor.

The girl writer who foresees that, as a grandmother she may recall with a doleful sigh the pure and perfect maldens of 1915, makes an excellent point. The basis of much criticism of the present generation is to be found in a single sentence: "You are young and we

But is the modern girl too sure of herself for her own safety? Should she pay more heed to the advice of her elders? Is she too contemptuous of mother's point of view; too selfish, too independent, too ambitious? Is she a failure as a daughter? The mothers and daughters who read The Evening World must have their opinions on this point, and I shall be glad to print any letters from them.

I think you are comparing some of our upfortunate sisters who have an er-roneous idea of modernism, with your ideal old-fashioned girl. No, my dear business girl, modernism isn't all bad. Meanwhite, let us allow the busi-ess girl to take the stand in her own refense:
"Dear Madam: You have invited ties, and, after all, that's about all we ness girl to take the stand in her own

"Dear Madam: You have invited remarks on the subject of 'the modern girl, a success or failure.' Business Girl' in last night's World evidently thinks her a failure. I also am a business girl, as far as seven and cons-half hours a day make me one. My work as a stenographer in the office of a prominent lawyer and enthusiasite politician brings me in contact with about every phase of human life, both male and female. The city in which I live and work is the killy girl of the dance hall or cafe as an example when discussing the kill of to-day. If we are to compare the modern girl with the girl of the modern girl with the man the man and the man are to compare the modern girl with the girl of the modern girl with the mod case as an example when discussing the city in which I live and work is inhabited by thirty-five thousand people, and is in the Wooden Nattneg State.

"I am a modern girl—perhaps that is why I disagree with 'Business Girl.' My friends are all modern girls, and it is for them as well as myself that i wish to defend the modern girl. I dance every time I get an opportunity; I dress within my means and think it not at all sinful; I talk about the fellers if conversation so requires. I powder my nose if it is too shiny to make a pretty picture; but, then, think a moment, dear 'Business Girl,' don't you know that the old-fashioned girl powdered her hair and pasted on hideous 'beauty marks' to attrack her lover and the admiration or jealousy of her friends?

"The city in which I live and work is inhabited by thirty-five the modern girl with the girl of to-day. If we are to compare the modern girl with the girl of to-day. If we are to compare the modern girl with the girl of to-day. If we are to compare the modern girl with the girl of to-day. If we are to compare the modern girl with the girl of to-day. moral and her ideals are just as high as her old-fishioned sister's, and she well deserves the little recreation she gets. She does not have to come off her pedestal because she is in the business world. True gentlemen will always respect her, but of course in every generation there are courteous and discourteous men. That condition will always exist. The time is not fair distant when woman will have her say in the making of the inws by which she is governed, and there is no reason why she, being just as intelligent and just as mentally capable as man, should not.

"The girl of to-day is a good chum and is not afraid to speak up for herself and come out in the open and say what she means. The girl of to-day is not taught to look up to men as lords of the land, for she is beginning to realize that she has twice as much brain matter as the majority of them.
